VISUALIZE 2050

Planning together today for better travel tomorrow in the National Capital Region

Be a part of planning the region's transportation future:
Comment on Visualize 2050, the National Capital Region
Transportation Plan.

■ ■ ■ About Visualize 2050 ■ ■ ■

In the year 2050, how will the region's transportation network move residents in and around neighborhoods? Visualize 2050 identifies the collective transportation investments that will enhance the quality of life for people who live, work, and visit the region. Through this plan, the TPB outlines the many topics considered and investments anticipated to improve the National Capital Region's multimodal transportation system over the next 20 years.

There are three products available for public comment:

- Visualize 2050 National Capital Region Transportation Plan: This plan guides long-range transportation for the National Capital Region 20 years in the future.
- FY 2026-2029 Transportation Improvement Program (TIP): This plan is a four year blueprint of the transportation projects that will be receiving funding from federal, state, local, and other sources.
- Visualize 2050 Air Quality Conformity Analysis Report of Visualize 2050 and the FY 2025-2029 TIP: An analysis of the regionally significant highway and transit projects and future land use changes to assess if the region will meet regional air quality standards.

How will your comments be used?

The region's transportation plan is updated regularly. Comments help inform how the region can best meet roadway, transit, and mobility needs through operation improvements, state of good repair, and system expansion.

Why it matters

Public comments will provide valuable feedback on what is missing from the plan and how to improve it for the next update as planning continues. Transportation projects in the plan will help the region's residents and visitors enjoy safe, reliable travel options.
